HERD EVOLUTION® SEEKS INDEPENDENT SALES REPRESENTATIVES

Richmond, KY – Herd Evolution®, manufacturers of the first ever premium year-round nutritional deer feeding program, has announced it is actively seeking highly motivated, enthusiastic and experienced independent sales representatives with established territories (specifically in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana and Michigan) to represent the brand. Established dealer network in independent shops and/or national chains required.

More than an attractant, the Herd Evolution nutritional deer feeding program was created from the tested and proven concept that if you feed the entire herd high-quality feed that is 100% digestible and packed with nutrition throughout the entire year, the result is a herd that not only survives, but thrives – with bigger, better antlers.

Selected independent reps will be required to meet and exceed monthly sales goals, visit accounts regularly to check inventory, show new product and secure new orders, open new accounts in assigned region, attend trade shows and other promotional events and become extremely knowledgeable on the product offerings versus the competition.

Interested applicants should contact Jason Bear at jbear@full-throttlecom.com.

About Herd Evolution®

Herd Evolution® is a premium year-round deer-feeding program scientifically formulated for optimal herd health and maximum genetic antler potential. Created by hunters for hunters, the program was created to not just attract deer, but attract and provide nutrition for a healthy herd. The feeding program was first created and used by ConQuest™ Scents founder Doug “The Deer Professor” Roberts, who through this system, has raised some of the largest whitetail deer in North America. Roberts continues to work with Herd Evolution to bring his year-round feeding program to hunters across the country.
