NEW CANYON COOLERS® OUTFITTER 35

Smart Design and Impressive Ice Retention Make This Premium Cooler a Must-Have for Hunters

If you're going to buy one size cooler to fit your refreshment needs around hunting camp, the new Canyon Coolers® Outfitter 35 is THE one. Heading out for a weekend hunt and don't want to lug 50 pounds of cooler for 10 pounds of food and drinks? The Canyon Coolers Outfitter 35 weighs only 22 pounds and with a 28% thicker body than the competition, it will keep ice not just for a day or two — but for weeks. And the features don't stop there.

The Canyon Coolers Outfitter 35 quart is true to size, which means it really holds 35 quarts and up to 36 cans of your favorite beverage, which also doesn't happen with the advertised holding capacities of other premium cooler brands. Plus, this cooler is built brutally strong. The premium polyethylene shell is filled with high-density foam. An aluminum hinge pin runs the length of the lid, ensuring that the lid and cooler body will remain inseparable for the life of the product. To maintain its industry-leading ice retention, Canyon Coolers designed its 35 quart Outfitter with beastly thick walls (3" lids with 2" floors) as well as a Silicon seal, so not a breath of chilled air can escape. Thick rope handles (think anchor line for the Titanic) will hold not only what you can put in the cooler, but also whatever you'd like to stack on top of it for transport.

Speaking of transport, the external design of the Outfitter 35 was carefully crafted to maximize a users space when carrying the cooler from home to camp. Its corners are squared to make packing around the cooler simple. Its closing latches are recessed to keep them from snagging other gear. Tie down areas are built in for off-road vehicles while non-skid, rubberized feet make sure the cooler will not slide around in the truck bed. And if that wasn't enough, the Outfitter 35 features a brand new gun sling-style shoulder strap to ensure a comfortable and reliable carry.

The Canyon Coolers Outfitter 35 comes in a variety of colors including Sandstone, White, Grey and White Marble, and will not stain or absorb odor. For the extremely organized, the cooler can also be outfitted with a blacked-out basket tray (sold separately) to keep selected items like sandwiches dry and off the ice. Plus, if you want to keep your food and beverages protected from animals (or your fellow hunting buddies), a built-in cable lock system keeps all contents secure. On top of all these features, Canyon Coolers offers a four-year warrantee.
