ONTARIO KNIFE® COMPANY UNLEASHES NEW STEALTH TACTICAL KNIFE

Japanese-Inspired Blade Design and Tapered Handle Make for a Formidable Knife

Ontario Knife Company® (OKC®), the award-winning cutlery maker with more than 130 years of experience designing and creating blades for every need, has designed the new Stealth knife that carries easily and uses Japanese-inspired designs in the blade and handle to make for a multi-purpose tactical tool that flies under the radar, but packs a big punch.

The OKC Stealth has a 3.56-inch blade made of S35VN with 57-59 HRC hardness. S35VN is an extremely tough, high-quality steel which provides superior resistance to wear and chipping while delivering excellent, long-lasting edge retention. The blade has tight serrations for utility. The 9.13-inch overall-length knife has a full tang construction and is covered by a double black micarta handle with a scale pattern for extra grip. The knife handle ergonomics are extremely versatile and comfortable with a distinct taper for striking and shattering when the situation calls for it. The black nylon sheath is molle-compatible and carries easily. This is a superbly balanced and fast-handling knife that is perfect for any situation, from good to very, very bad.
