GRIZZLY CARTRIDGE CO. ADDS PUNCH TO THE 10MM

Grizzly's Factory Loads for Your 10mm Pistol Offer New Levels of Performance

Rainier, Ore. – The 10mm has been going through a resurgence as of late, with more firearm manufacturers developing pistols and even a few rifles for the potent caliber. Grizzly Cartridge Co., producers of some of the finest loaded ammunition and reloading components on the market today, has a wide range of factory loaded ammunition for the 10mm that will exceed your expectations of what the caliber can do, and how well it performs for you.

When Col. Jeff Cooper helped develop the 10mm Auto round in the mid-1980s, it was in an attempt to design a cartridge that had a faster, flatter trajectory than that of the .45 Auto, and more power than the 9mm. The results spoke for themselves, but the recoil made adapting the caliber for service firearms in law enforcement difficult. Still, the caliber stayed around and steadily grew as handgun enthusiasts and hunters saw the value in the performance of the round. Today, the 10mm is gaining popularity and is being chambered in more firearms than ever before.

Grizzly Cartridge Co. is offering a new 220 gr Hard Cast FP at 1150 fps for five factory-loaded ammunition options for the 10mm Auto. There are two options in 200-grain weight bullets. You can select between a jacketed hollow-point, or a WFNGC-flat point bullet. Each has a muzzle velocity of 1,200fps. In 180-grain, there is a jacketed hollow-point with a muzzle velocity of 1,300fps. On the lighter side, there is a 155-grain jacketed hollow-point with a muzzle velocity of 1,400fps. All are well suited for personal defense, target shooting and hunting applications. As you would expect from Grizzly, each round is carefully loaded with an exclusive power mixture, blended for optimal reliable performance.

The jacketed hollow-point rounds all come in twenty-round boxes for $24.99. The WFNGC rounds also come in a twenty-round box for $22.99. Like all Grizzly Cartridge Co. products, each round is loaded in the USA, and under careful guidelines set by the company founder for precision and quality.

About Grizzly Cartridge Co.

In 2003 Grizzly Cartridge Company started with the idea from founder Mike Rintoul, that all engineering, manufacturing, marketing, quality assurance and service functions for every product would routinely undergo his personal inspection, maintaining the highest level of quality assurance and customer satisfaction. That same commitment goes into every product made and sold, including the Cast Performance bullets. The company is committed to providing shooters and hunters with innovative and quality products. The trained professionals offer you unparalleled support to ensure all of your adventures in the great outdoors will be enjoyable and successful.
